

Media information

The Crème de la crème of Freestyle: Corvatsch Silvaplana is preparing for the FIS Freeski & Snowboard World Cup from March 21-24, 2024

Silvaplana near St. Moritz, SUI (18.12.23) Winter has arrived in Europe, in Engadin the Corvatsch Park is open and just concluded another successful “Progression Days”. At the end of the season the park will be in the spotlight once again for the 11th edition of the FIS Freeski & Snowboard World Cup Corvatsch Silvaplana, going down from March 21-24, 2024. The event traditionally marks the last Slopestyle event of the season. A total prizemoney of CHF 120.000 is up for grabs next to the event titles and the small and big FIS Crystal Globes.

Going big - Corvatsch Park is known for its top-notch course with a kicker-line rarely found anywhere else. Kobi Würsch and his team deliver excellent work year after year and the park became the favorite of many riders over time. Surely another creative and progressive setup is ready for the riders in March to explore.

The best freestylers in the world will use the opportunity to compete in the park one last time before the FIS Snowboard, Freestyle and Freeski World Championships St. Moritz 2025. Who will claim the World Cup titles in 2024 at the last rehearsal and leave Engadin with lots of confidence? Will the home advantage help Swiss favorites Nicolas Huber, Mathilde Gremaud or Andri Ragettli against 2023 title defenders Jesper Tjäder (SWE), Julia Marino (USA), Tess Ledeux (FRA), Taiga Hasegawa (JPN) and many more?

More information and updates: Website | Facebook | Instagram | Hashtags:
#corvatsch #corvatschpark #silvaplana #worldcupcorvatsch #freestylestmoritz2025

Media contacts:

media-worldcup@corvatsch.ch

Birgit Gruber, birgit@gruber.tirol, +43-676-530200

Astrid Nehls, astrid@services-sbc.com, +41-79-9024215